

Shelby County citizens working together to maintain our agriculture, green space and rural heritage.

Historically Shelby County, Kentucky has been one of our state's leading agricultural producers.

Today, Shelby County is also known as "The American Saddlebred Capital of the World" – home to more breeders, trainers, exhibitors and fans of the American Saddlebred horse than anywhere else on the globe. Indeed, crops, livestock, and people alike thrive on the physical and emotional riches offered by our rolling meadows, spring-fed water sources, limestone-rich soil, and beautiful, sprawling vistas.

It is MORE's goal to maintain a healthy balance of all of these things. We are a group of Shelby County farmers, horse people, homeowners, and local businesspeople who are concerned about the rapid growth Shelby County is experiencing, and its effect on Shelby County's heritage, economy, and quality of life.

To learn more about MORE and what we're working on, or to contact a MORE member, visit our Frequently Asked Questions and News pages. And yes, we LOVE new members and volunteers; in fact, we can use all the help we can get. Just contact us if you'd like to attend a board meeting, or for any other info.

Thanks for visiting!

* NOTE: If you're looking for something you saw on a previous visit, just use the "Search" feature at the left of this page. Simply type in a keyword, hit the "Search" button, and bingo. Your answer should be there. (Everything should be so sensible.)

If you are looking for information that is no longer posted on the MORE website, sent MORE an email at more@shelbybb.net , and MORE will re-post the info on this website.

The MORE logo uses a seedling – a farming icon – to illustrate the delicate state of growth in our community.

Just as the seedling requires the right environment and management to thrive, so does our land –and the people who live on it.